Class Notes from Alumni of Moody Bible Institute

SERVING CHRIST
AROUND THE WORLD

Dear Moody Alumni,

Following a thorough search spanning five months, Moody Bible Institute is pleased to announce the appointment of Nancy (Andersen) Hastings to the position of Executive Director of the Alumni Association. Nancy is a 1980 graduate of Moody with a major in Communications. She is no stranger to the Alumni Association, as she has served in various capacities over an accumulated 20-year period. Nancy has served two terms as an alumni board member and has been employed in various full-time and part-time positions within the Alumni Association, helping fill the gap at key times. She has also had the opportunity to serve with five MBI alumni directors through the years, giving each valuable energy and insight.

Nancy's love for and knowledge of Moody history goes deep, and she is committed to the ongoing ministry of the Institute. Her focus will be on fulfilling the mission of the Alumni Association in a manner that encourages all alumni and leverages opportunities for a greater degree of alumni involvement in Moody for the years to come.

Please join me in congratulating Nancy on her new position!

In Christ,

Thomas A. Shaw

Nancy Hastings, Alumni Director

When asked what goals she has for the Alumni Association, Nancy speaks of the value of alumni, the privilege of being an alumna, and the responsibility of carrying on the legacy of Moody's ministries.

"I enjoy meeting our alumni and hearing the amazing stories of God's faithfulness in their lives. I am also excited as I see new graduates go out into the world trusting God to direct their futures. One of my goals is to see these two groups interact more. By building the students' awareness of what our alumni are doing both in the marketplace and in ministry, it can give them perspective on life after graduation." Nancy hopes to show both alumni and students that they have much to offer each other. She will be working more with student groups to encourage alumni to come back to campus to serve with and teach students from their own life and ministry experiences, while giving them an opportunity to see the passion that current students have for Christ.

"My roots are deep in the history of Moody and I care deeply about the Institute, its ministry, and alumni." Nancy's goals include showing alumni how valued they are in the Moody family and their importance in carrying on the legacy of Moody both in their daily lives and in their support of Moody and its ministries.

Reflecting on her cumulative 20 years of service at Moody, Nancy says, "Some might see my life as random events thrown together, but God sees them as a beautiful mosaic, each piece fitting together to form His plan." This concept, from the book You Matter More Than You Think by Dr. Leslie Parrott, was instrumental in leading Nancy to apply for this position. Her desire to serve God and her love for the ministries of Moody have kept her engaged with alumni over the years. Her husband, Doug Hastings '79, has been with Moody Radio for 30 years and currently serves as General Manager. Doug and Nancy have two grown children, Mac, 23 and JoAnna Landers, 25.

Alumnus Visits Campus, Shares Experiences in Muslim Ministry

Cliff Garner '81, who currently serves at Harvard University as the Administrative Officer for the Prince Alwaleed Bin Talal Islamic Studies Program, recently spoke to Moody students about his life journey and ministering to Muslims at a breakfast hosted by the Alumni Association. This event was well attended, with more than 70 students and staff in attendance.

Cliff's passion for reaching Muslims began when he was at Moody during the time of the Iranian revolution, which occurred from 1977 to 1979. Cliff encouraged students not to underestimate the power of prayer and to take advantage of prayer groups at Moody and beyond. Cliff was involved in a Moody prayer group that prayed over maps of Iran, city by city. God moved mightily during this time frame—the number of people who became Christians in Iran during the time of the revolution increased from 200 to 50,000.

After he graduated from Moody, Cliff studied Arabic and Japanese at the University of Illinois—Chicago, and helped start the UIC InterVarsity chapter, emphasizing outreach to international students and Muslims. He has also taught in Pakistan and Egypt, and served as the founding director of the Middle East Studies Program within the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities.

At Harvard and in his previous positions, he has sometimes interacted with people who were initially opposed to Christianity. Despite this challenge, Cliff focused on having relationships with others and stayed grounded in Cliff Garner '81 speaks at the Islam Today breakfast hosted by the Alumni Association.

Christ. “God has used all my experiences up to this point to build my love for Muslims, to humanize them, and to teach me how to engage them,” he said.

He shared key lessons from his years in ministry to Muslims: get to know them as people, listen to them, ask them questions, understand that they are pluralistic, and remember that the most passionate person of another faith may be the most ready to receive and live for Christ—just like Paul. He also encouraged students to pursue excellence at work, both as a witness for Christ and to honor God.

Moody alumni are encouraged to visit campus and to share their insights with students at informal gatherings. For more information about setting up an event for students, please contact the Moody Alumni Association at 312-329-4412. Or e-mail mbialum@moody.edu.

Experience Moody Bible Institute—Spokane

Moody Bible Institute—Spokane, established as a Moody undergrad program in 2004, has blossomed into a destination campus, drawing more than 400 students each year. Located in eastern Washington State, MBI—Spokane offers ten undergraduate degrees in a setting with 260 days of sunshine annually and a myriad of outdoor activities, from hiking and skiing in the nearby mountains to rafting and fishing in local rivers. Spokane offers many of the amenities found in large cities but has a small-town atmosphere that is reflected in the close-knit community on the MBI—Spokane campus.

“For many students, this is just what the doctor ordered—a small school with close ties to faculty, navigating life together with other students,” says Daniel Ward, Dean of Students.

Student Rachel Reichart agrees. “I love the heart of this school and the family I have experienced here,” she says. “I am proud of the impact this school is having on the community of Spokane.”

MBI—Spokane has this impact in part because students are not isolated on a residential campus, and they have many opportunities to interact with people throughout the city, wherever they live and gather. In years past, students at MBI—Spokane have had to secure their own housing, which enabled them to minister to their neighbors and landlords. Many of those landlords have been so impressed by MBI—Spokane students that the owners of 28 nearby properties rent exclusively to these students. The school administration is closely involved, as each of these properties is under the supervision of a live-in Resident Advisor.

“My housing experience here has been more than I could have hoped for,” says student Lauren Callison. “My roommates are my best friends, and we have learned a lot from each other.”

Current and former students agree that MBI—Spokane is a perfect fit for those who wish to study while deepening their relationship with Christ. Aviation alumnus Jonathan Santhouse, 2010, explains, “MBI—Spokane is great because the principles learned in class are readily applicable to daily life; because of the lack of a residential campus, there is not quite as much of the ‘Christian Bubble’ effect.”

MBI—Spokane students benefit from a strong sense of community.

To give the largest number of students the opportunity to earn a Moody Bible Institute degree, Moody Bible Institute may offer some students, who initially applied for admission to Moody in Chicago, admission to MBI—Spokane. Tuition and housing costs at MBI—Spokane are comparable to housing costs at Moody in Chicago. Students also have the option of earning a degree online or beginning a degree online and reapplying to admission at MBI—Chicago.

Walden '53 and Beverly (Keith '53)

Owen pastored four congregations from 1958 to 1980, two of which they founded. In 1981, they joined Youth with a Mission (YWAM), trained in Texas, and were released to start a training center in Miami in 1984. From the Miami center, they established bases in Panama and Guadalajara, Mexico. In 1995, they moved the training center to Orlando.

In 1977, they turned the leadership of the base over to a young man who had become a disciple in a church they pastored in Michigan. In August 2010, they acquired a 198-acre property, previously known as Woodlands Lutheran Campground, and are moving forward with ministry plans there.

Louis Kramp '49 and his wife Inez are celebrating 60 years of marriage this year.

Stan Adair '41-'42 was drafted into the U.S. Army in 1942 while at Moody. During his time stationed at Abilene, Texas, and Ft. Lewis, Washington, he was involved in a radio ministry and also started a gospel quartet of servicemen who sang at base chapels, churches, jail services, and other meetings. After four years of military service, he directed Youth for Christ in Boise, Idaho; Denver, Colorado; and San Francisco, California.

In 1952 he founded the Fellowship of Christian Magicians, beginning with 19 members in San Francisco, to encourage pastors and Sunday school teachers who were using magic tricks to illustrate Bible stories. It is now an international organization with over 19,000 members.

In 1973 Stan founded Wolf Mountain Camp, a 600-acre ranch in Grass Valley, California, that welcomes children from the city to spend time outdoors and be taught from the Bible. A few years later, he started the Conservative Baptist Men's Retreats where businessmen meet for a weekend. The goal of "good food, good fellowship, and top-notch speakers" has paid off, with hundreds of lives changed.

When CB radio was at its peak, Stan founded "Christian Alert." Christians with Citizens' Band radios who were traveling across the country could stay tuned to Channel 12 and talk with fellow Christians all across the nation.

Now 92, Stan has retired three times from business. He is very active in his home church and involved in serving on the board of directors of several Christian organizations. He is in good health, drives his own car, and puts in hard working days on the small ranch he owns in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. He welcomes any correspondence from classmates and other alumni.
